The county court was busy yester-day trying several unimportant cases. The commissioners' court finished the road business. All cases that had a tendency to lengthen roads were per-emptority disposed of. An order was passed by which any road overseer who fails to make his reports accord-ing to the instructions of the court will be fined. Mr. C. A. Daniels was apbe fined. Mr. C. A. Daniels was ap-pointed on the part of the county to wind the town clock in this city and keep it at standard time. The county assessor was authorized to correct cercollector was instructed to collect by such corrections. It is understood that it is the intention, of the count to straighten all roads in the county. No further action was taken in regard to the better security of the county records.

The Omaha Republican has the following interesting story in reference to Miss Bertha Welby, the great emotional actress that appears at the opera house Monday night next in Camille:

Camille:

Bertha Welby, the beautiful actress, who appeared at Boyd's opera house last evening, in the play of One Woman's Life, received quite a scare at Nebraska City, owing to her having forgotten her diamonds in her room. Her manager, Mr. D'Arcy, upon being questioned concerning the episode, told the story as follows:

old the story as follows:
Our last stand before Omaha was Our last stand before Omaha was sebraska City, and to make the jump we had to catch the 4:15 a. m. Kansas City, St. Joe & Councut Bluffs train on the east side of the river. We left the Barnum house at 3:30 a. m., in an open sieign and with four horses. The distance to make is some hing over three miles and crossing over the river on the ice. We had very little sleep, but the company were all in high spirits, and the ride was being greatly enjoyed. About a quarter of a mile west of the river, we passed through a gap cut through a rock, and I jestingly told the company to look out for the Jesse James gang, as that was one of Jesse James gang, as that was one of their favorite spots of operation. In a second I was wildly clutched by Miss Welby, who was sitting next to me. She was as white as the snow-covered landscape, and with a gasp she ordered the driver to turn back. What passessed hor I could not imagine. The driver pulled up, and again she ordered him to turn back "Drive back to the hotel, like mad,"

CHIMES OF NORMANDY.

Last night a very large audience assembled at the opera house to see the presentation of the Chimes of Nor-mandy. They had been led to expect mandy. They had been red to expert something fine and it must be con-fessed that they were greatly disap-pointed—and very pleasantly too, for the outcome was beyond their wilder dreams. These young ladies and gen-tlemen have devoted a great deal of time to the preparation of this opera, and the performance of last night was of such a high order as to con-vince all in the audience that the time spent was well improved. The opinion was freely expressed by many that no opera performance of this season eclipsed this, and that is saying a great deal for the talented young lades and gentlemen engaged in it. It should be a source of pride to the whose city that Fort Worth can produce such an array of talent.

The costumes of the various participants were very elegant, and a credit to the taste of those who got them up. They added not a little to the pleasure of the audieuce. The singing while bringing plaudits from the spectotors reflected credit upon Professor Otten the patient and painstaking director of the whole undertaking director of the whole undertaking from its incipiency. There was not a jar from beginning to end. Every-thing moved as on wheels, and Mr. Washer, the prompter, must shoulder the great responsibility for this. It was remarkable how he could attend to these duties and take his own part too. The cast is as follows:

Serpolette, the good-for-nothing-soprano Mrs. A. S. Pettus. Germaine, the lost Mar-chioness — Merzo-so-prano Miss Fannie Murphy.

Gaspard, a miser-liass N. Washer.
The Baille-Bass L. Higby, Jr.
Notary-Bass L. H. Smith.

Miss J. Waterman, Miss L. Souter, Miss K. Leslie, Miss M. vess, wiss ida Martin, Miss E. Jennings, Miss L. Terry, Miss M. Smith. ALTON.

TENOUS. V. Reeves, Mr. Porter, T. M. Wonlery, A. Descon, F. E. Harrington, F. L. Crosby.

J. Rafferty, E. Hoefle, O. Owens, H. O. g. Hartwig ...

D. BRIDERY ... Prof. G. M. Otten, Conductor. It is hard to discriminate when there were so many deserving mention. The choruses were with at exception very good, and noticeable for very good, and hollegable for clear enunciation and the blending of the parts as into one rich tone. The prin-cipal parts were all well sustained. Mrs. Pettus was a most charming and popular serpolette. Miss Murphy's voice as Germaine surpassed itself in the pretty solos she sang, and she car-ried the house away entirely. Mr. Bomer as Henrishowet the experience of a professional. Mr. W. T. MaGinnis, as Jean Grenicheux, was very versaas Jean Grenicheux, was very versattle, displaying great ability in his acting as well as his singing. Mr. N. Washer in Gaspard showed that he has hitherto missed his calling, for he was eleverly disguised, and was the real miser throughout. Mr. L. L. Higby, Jr., as the baillie was a most popular performer, and Mr. F. H. Smith as the Notary brought himself laureis in a new field.

The audience was a most cultivated one, and its applause was unremitting, as it could not help being. There was nothing to mar the continued pleasure of all throughout the evening. It is understood that the company will be invited to other places, and the CAZETTE gives assurance that no such invitation that is accepted will ever be

The following extract from the life of William the Conquerer is exceedingly winam the Conquerer's exceedingly curious, as characteristic of the manners of a semi-civilized age and nation:

"After some years' delay, William appears to have become desperate, and, if we may trust to the chronical of Ingerbe, in the year 1047, waylaid Mattida in the streets of Bruges, as she was returning from mass, seized her, rolled her in the dirt, spoiled her rich array, and not content with these outrages, struck her repeatedly and rode off at full

"This brought the affair to a crisis, for Matida, either convinced of the strength of William's passion by the violence of his behavior, or afraid of encountering another beat-
